“The Power of Zero”

Ninth Annual Safety Summit to be Held September 30 and October 1, 2014

The time for the ninth annual Alaska Occupational Safety Summit is fast approaching. Based on the positive response from last year’s conference we have moved the location to the Egan Convention Center to accommodate additional attendees. Your sponsorship is key to the success of the Safety Summit.

“The Power of Zero” is the theme for this year’s Summit. The Summit features informative topics on incident prevention, regulatory compliance, safety and health management, and other professional development sessions geared to Safety, Health and Risk Managers.

Sponsorship Makes Your Company Part of the Safety Summit

The Safety Summit continues to attract the best speakers from across the country to present fresh ideas on occupational safety and health. Your financial support allows our volunteer organization to present the Summit and keep registration fees low. The Safety Summit is an excellent value for the money, offering continuing education credits without out-of-state travel expenses.

Importance of Safety Training

Every day, industries such as oil and gas, mining, commercial fishing and construction must contend with an array of health, safety and environmental concerns. In the face of increasing regulatory oversight, as well as increased public scrutiny, companies need to implement effective safety training and management to protect their workers, the general public and the environment. The Safety Summit provides the most current health and safety training that can translate into reduced personal and economic loss associated with injuries, accidents and health hazards.
